The Universalist society will hold their annual Harvest Festival and fair at their vestry on Ticeslay, Wednesday and Thursday evenings of next week. An attractive programme of entertainment will be provided each evening, and judging by the efforts being made by the efficient committees, the fair in all its features will be even more successful than those of forner years. A new and original catertalament is being arranged for each of the disk two evenings, and a dramatic entertainment will be the attraction on Thursday evening.

will be the attraction on Thursday evening.

There is a constant demand at Clark and Foster's for tickets to the grand concert, which is to be given at the Union church, Nov. 17, and over one hundred udditional reserved seats have been sold during the week. As the pews accommodate over six hundred persons there remain denty of good seats, which will no doubt all be taken, before the date of the concert. Mr. Saxon, the learitime, is proving a strong attraction, and many who have heard his solos here on previous occasions will improve the opportunity to listen to him again. During his visit aloraed this summer Mr. Saxon sang at the Crystal Palare, London, where he was the only one of six soloists who was homoral with an encore. Mr. Hartbett is classed by the well known musled critte of the Reston Advertiser, as one of the most thished and desirable tenors now before the public, while Mr. Alles the violinist is so well and favorably known as to need not a word of comment. Next, and by no means hist in the order of exercises, and without doubt fully appreciated, came the ample collation. The fruit cake and the bride's cake, although not unde for the original wedding, were interested by independently, in quality and quantity, to their predecessors upon that menorable evening, while the ice cream was in improvement not dreamed of in this equitive days; while fruit and coffee left nothing now to be desired in the way of refreshment. The foral denartions were also unique and tastefully arranged. try and will hardly be likely to happen ugain.

Fifty years ago on the evening of Nov. 2, 1820, at the residence of Capt.

Timothy Nash, were married by Rev. Jonas Perkins, Francis Crane and bis brother John, sons of John and Sarah (Cain-Crane, to Mary Burrell Nash and her sister Elizabeth, daughter of Capt. Timothy and Betsey (Cushing-Nash. In each of the families of Mr. Crane and Capt. Nash there had been five sons and seven daughters, all of whom had lived to reach manhood and wimathood during the lives of their parents; both couples were married by Mr. Perkins in one veremony; and among the children of Capt. Nash there had been already two golden weehlings. Francis and John Crane have always lived in this village and their children and grandchildren are now residents of it.

Tuesday evening opened bright and fair, very different from that other, ilf-ty years ago, which greeted the wedding of the two comples with a viceluration of the gan to assemble at about six o'clock, and very soon the number of seventy was reached, out of a possible hundred; including all of the living brothers and isters in both families, seven of cach, only the near relatives were invited, as otherwise, the number would have been too numerous for even the ample rooms where the amniversary was held.

All of the children and grand children were present, and nost of the nephews and neices with liker hast and wives. The invitations said "six to eight o'clock," and at about half quest six, Den. Charles T. Crane, son of John and Elizabeth, who neiced as master of ceremonics, called the cumpany to order, and, at his request, then, Gilbert Nash, a brother of the two "brides," gave, in brief, some account of a few of the peculiar curenostances connected with this gathering of the two families.

We shortly entered the Grand Canon of the Gunubon; and here we were assuminished by the manifestations of some auper-inumate power, which had been operating through successive ages. As we gazed upon the almost perpendientar surfaces of the gorge on either side, we noticed the same reversed configuration as though some Tilanic power had eleft sundet the soild granile mountain from base to summit, and left on either side the exact counterpart of the opposite.

Many sharp pointed eminences called Needlea rise from out this gorge, for fundreds of feet, and sometimes for two or even three thousand feet in the air. Among the most celebrated of these is like Currecanti Niedle, a vast monolith pink in color, rising two thousand feet from lin base with smooth, gently receding sides ending in a slightly leading have seemingly close against the clouds. Just opposite this, the train rans because of the color, and also many thriving butuneleveloped cities, among which are Sargent, l'arilins, Finnnisau and Montrose; also many others, each possessing a distinct may offers, each possessing a distinct may offers, each possessing a distinct may provide the way from tiunnison being a scarcely reclaimed desert. Mue siter uite we passed of invaried sandy soll with dry sagebush as the only vegetable product and prairie dogs by hundreds—the only animals—silting on their haunches and gazing at a safe distance, at the passing train. No thuber to construct houses was visible, no vegetation to support animal life. Everything was dependent on, and constructed for the railraid. The depots were built from materials brought over the rails; the provisions for residents and travelers had to be transported from the nearest spots of civilization and the occasional resident whom we chanced to observe, seemed unique specimens of humanity, such ms we read of, distrustingly, in some old descriptions of border life, but like nothing we see he any state east of the Mississippl, in loads, actions or speech. The crested luttes offered almost the only relief to the monotony of the scene, till, after aloud 500 or 600; andes of mountain siminits, of deep, dark rocky campis and arid desert, we dark rocky canning and arid desert, we saw in the west the snow-capped peaks of the Walisatch mountains, and realized the fact that we were again approaching eivilization. After passing the boundary line of Utah, we began to climb the Walisatch hills, the western vanquaril of the Rocky Mountains. And here just before we reach Pleasant Valley Junction, we pass the wonderful clifts that have received the name of Castle Gate. Helwi en the manntains on either side is a narrow delle, just while enough for the tunnituous, rushing river and the mirroal track. On our left, as we go towards the west, the mountain is split apart by volemic action, and the force of frost and ire acting through unummbered years. An momitain is split apart by volemic aetion, and the force of frost and ice action, and the force of frost and ice action and control of the height of 450 feet, so close as almost to invertaing our track, while just opposite a slender pyramid of sione divided from the monutain range by a narrow chasm stands apart, isolated, upparently only about 25 feet in diameter at its lasse and rising to the height of 500 feet. These two rocky peaks, endored in different tints, stand as the grand and beautiful gnardians to the Castle Canon, heyand which we plunged more deeply into the deliles of the Walasatch monutains and shortly renched the summit. Then began the rapid descent down the western slope, and soon, through the valley of the Sevier we energed into the heart of Mormondom. In our journey from Denver of about 740 miles, we had seen the most wonderful scenery of the world but it was of a hold, striking and sometimes of a fearful character. Heautiful villages and picturesque little valleys, and cozy country seats, were very seldom observed. In fact the while scenic character of the country, could hardly lave been more dissimilar to that of New England. But now as we came rushing on a down grade from out the heart of the Wahsatch momitains, a wondrous beautiful vision opened to our view. It seemed as though we had been transferred by magle power from out the wonderful chaotic world in

ses. Gardens in a high state of entitya-tion and a profusion of fruit, and slade trees were seen in close connection with almost every house. The houses were mostly made of adole. But it is worthy

The very persons from whom she most desires to hide the waning of her charms are the ones most likely to make the discovery. But there is no reason why she should not regain and retain all the beauty of hair that was her pride in youth. Let her use Ayna's HAIR V 1600a, and, not only will her hair cease to fall out, but a new growth will appear where the scalp has been denucled; and locks that are turning gray, or have actually grown white, will return to their pristine freshness and brilliance of color. KING'S EVIL

Was the name formerly given to Scrofuls because of a supersition that it could be cured by a king's touch. The workl is wiser now, and knows that ean only be cured by a thorough purifica-tion of the blood. If this is neglected, the disease perpetuates its taint through generation after generation. Among its earlier symptomatic developments are Eccema, Cutaneous Ernptions, Tumors, Bolia, Cárbuncles, Eryalpeins, Purnlent Uteers, Nervous and Physical Colinpse, etc. If allowed to continue, Rheumantism, Serofulous Cartrib, Khitney and Liver Diseases, Tabercular Consumption, and various other tangerous or fatal maladies, are produced by it.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Is the only powerful and always reliable blood-purifying medicine. It has offectual an alwayive that he cradicates from the avient Heredit ary Scrotula, and the kindred pulsans of contagious disenses and mercury. At the same time it enriches and vializes the blood, restoring bealtiful action to the vital organs and rejuvenating the entire system. This great Regenerative Medicine Is composed of the genuine Hordware Straoparilla, with Yellow Dock, Stillingia, the Iotides of Potassium and Iria, and other ingredients of great petercy, carefully and scientifically compounded. Its formula is generally known to the medical profession, and the best physicians constantly prescribe AYER'S SARSAPARILLA as an

An Ex-Confederate's Story of the Civil War.

How a Company Was "Rattled" in One Fight and Redeemal Itself in Another.

the Detroit Free Press; In one of the first lattles that decided McClelinn's career on the Peninsnia company "G" of a certain southwestern regiment, havlng been stationed to hold a particular point, became rattled under the artiliery fire of the Federals and broke back in lude those with pompon and other fan- | wild disorder. The esse was so marked, occurring as It did in sight of helf a mile of battle-line, and 10,000 reserve fabrics and in braids and other woven troops, that the enupany was guyed, irlumnings, Had it been losing any number of mer under the fire the case would have been different, but they broke back without even having a man wounded, I was personally nequalited with many of the men, and I had this excuse for them. It was their first fight, and their officers had no experience. Under a veteran captain they would have held their place aml cracked jokes about the screaming The epithet of coward was applied lo every man in the company, and the colonel of the regiment was so indignant over the matter that it was whispered about that he had requested our Brigadier-General to have the company dis-banded in disgrace. Nothing of that sort was done, however, as we had already began the pursuit of McClelian. In the fights up to Malvern Hill the regiment was in the rear, or supporting we swept up to Crew's farm to find the Federal army posted on the plateau beyoud, and waiting to give our victorious legends a bloody check. We were forming battle lines in the woods when the guabouts at Turkey Bend opened fire Trovatere;" the tune is caught up by with their great guas, and three or four different times the falling limbs crashed flown to break our formation and throw ni into confusion. ance across the level meadows. My company was in the second buttle line, theorder was given, the captain, who was by far the smallest man in his com-pany, and had all along been known as the "Little Cuptam," stepped to the roat and quietly said: "Men, we have a chance to redeem ourselves. We have been called cownrds, and our good mane has been taken nway. Let us regain it here or die on the field. The men did not cheer, but I saw them settle themseives for desperate work. Away went the first line, sweeping along like a giant wave, and then we got the order to fellow. Just as we broke cover the Federal ar tillery opened on us with over tifty gans, and the echo of the first gun had not died away when a shell blew three men of "G" company to pieces. I had to step over one of the mutilated bodles us followed on, but the living showed no signs of dismay. Shot and shell plowed through that front line without mercy-grapeshot hissed as we got nearer ket balls were striking for beyond us before we changed our "common time" to "doublequick." We could not get there. Such a fire was opened upon us as seem to whirl us about in a mad circle. Amillst the hourse shouts of officers and the crash of musketry I heard the Little Captain calling: "Stendy, boys! The enemy is there in front—come with me !"

We went forward as a mob would go, hnited, whirled round and round, and then the order was given to retire. We retreated to cover to form again, while a fresh batch of victims moved up. 1 had a scratch, as did almost every one else in my company who came off alive, but this did not prevent me from looking about for Company "G." "Where is Captain Blake and Company "f' 4" "Here, sir!" replied the little captain, ns he sainted. His left arm had been broken by a bullet, and there was blond on his face from a second wound. Lying at his feet, with a ball in his shoulder, was his second lieutenant. Standing beside him was a private with two fingers shot off. Every other man in "G" was lying dead or wounded at the front. Indeed, the company was idotted out. The men who had broken back in a panie in their first light had died the deaths of old vetcians in their second.

Carlous Protection of Insects. London Nature thus sums up the results of some experiments upon the acquisition of an unpleasant taste as means of protecting insects from their engines. by E. H. Poulton, and communicated to the British Association. The nathor remarked that Darwin, thinking of the uso of color in animals, and deciding across the leight colors of enterpillars, which are sexless. He directed Wallace's attention to the subject, and he ventured a prediction that the bright colors would be associated with some nupleasant taste or smell, so that lizards, etc., refused to cat them. Experiments poved that this was correct, but, on thinking the subject over, it seemed to the writer that some limitations were required. If an insect was distasteful to a lizard, the former would either be starved or would have to put up with we cuideasout taste. It might probably acquire a relish for what little erto was disagreeable, and then the distasteful organisms being brilliant and conspicuous would be easily caught, and externinated. Mr. Position therefore determined to experiment igon them, believing that it would be found that reeze, with the tops of the young plants protection by a disagreeable taste was innersed, for forcing—in long, waving lines of tendrils floating on the water, that that was the ease.
